

Mans Stane, Loch of Swannay

There are several traditions relating to a resting place near the north end of the loch of Swannay. They variously tell of a stone known as the Mans Stone, a stone called Mansie's Grip, and a resting place on a stone dyke, ( now removed) called Mans-kin-dyke. Although all differing slightly, these three traditions all associate this place as one of the resting places of the funeral procession carrying St Magnus's body from Evie to Birsay.

References

- Fraser, J. 1925 Antiquities of Birsay Parish, proceedings of the Orkney Antiquarian Society III, 21-30
- Marwick, E. nd Archive Papers. Orkney Archive. D31/37/1/1 'An Island Saint', 5
- Marwick, H. Archive Papers, Orkney Archive. D29/1/1 letter 3. 14th February 1957
- Marwick, H. 1957 'Antiquarian Notes and Queries IV' in The Orcadian, 14th February 1957, p.4
- Mooney, J. 1935 Saint Magnus Earl of Orkney, Kirkwall, 202